December was ushered in by the same quality of mild, splendid fall weather that continued throughout November. Wouldn't it be fine if the same quality of weather would continue to Christmas. Of course such a thing would be a grievous disappointment to the many so-called prophets, who have prophesied a severe winter. But then their prognostications are already woefully discredited, and their reputations could not be more discredited if there would actually be no winter.

T. F. Lockridge, who recently purchased a harness shop in this city, which for the past several months has been receiving his undivided attention, the first of the week received an S. O. S. from State Hospital No. 4 to accept his old position at that institution as head chef. He responded to such distress signal, and is again on the job out there, though The Times is unable to say how long he may consent to stay with that important position which he for several years filled so acceptably and well. He now has a business of his own to look after.

"WILL MY BATTERY FREEZE?"

A storage battery will not freeze if kept properly charged, but beware of zero weather and the battery that runs below 125°. They are not satisfactory team-mates.

Winter time is here and we may have freezing weather most any time. Car owners who drive their cars during the winter should have their battery tested every two weeks, to see that battery is kept charged.

If you store your car during the winter it will be to your interest to see us about caring for batteries on cars that are in storage. A storage battery will discharge while standing idle, a discharged battery will freeze, a frozen battery will have to be replaced with a new one. Think it over, and call or see The Battery Service Station. Phone 99, Farmington, Mo. C. M. Thompson, Prop.
